If the Levite, in addition to looking at the wounded man, had bound up his wounds, placed him on a donkey, and taken him to the inn, yet all the time berating him for the trouble he was making, he would still have "passed by on the other side."

If the Sameritan had come along on foot, and with no soothing oil and no money, but had merely bent over the sufferer, comforted him with emocataging words, and then hurried on to the next village to return with efficient aid, then he, though doing none of the things mentioned in the parable, would have manifested precisely the spirit which Christ commends; he would rot have "passed by on the other aide."

For the good Samurtan is an embediment of love. Not of leeds, for the deeds may be taken for granted when love is present; and deeds without love are anking cymbals and sounding brass.

"Oh, I am hungry for a handshake," replied the stranger, and told his new friend about a discouraging search for work. But that handshake put new heart in him, and was the foundation of his success.

We are Skely to forget that, as Ruskin said: "A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great iteal of money." Gladstone, with an empire on his shoulders, found time to leave Parliment and carry flowers to a little zick crossing-sweeper. It does not always get known on carth—what Walsworth calis.

That best portion of a good man's life. His little, nameless, unremembered, in heaven.

Never are kind acts once.
To wine the weeping eyes,
But like the flashes of the sun.
They signal to the skies;
And up above the angels read.
How we have helped the sorer need.

A special English service will be held at the German Evangelical Lutheran Zion's Church, Twenty-first and Benton streets, to-morrow night, in which the confirmation of seventren children will take place. This English confirmation in the German congregation is rather a new departure, as heretofore the congregation has always felt, it being a German congregation, that only the German language should be used in the same. Every duy has, however, more and more proven to the members the necessity of abso teaching the doctrine of the church to the children in the English language.
